

Why Wealthy People Buy Bonds

Many high-net worth clients make bonds a significant part of their portfolio. Some people, though, would never consider buying bonds, since they believe that the stock market is a better bet. Stocks and bonds are different types of investments and have different levels of risk, so it's reasonable for people to have some bond exposure in their accounts. Here are some reasons why people buy bonds:

- * Predictable income
- * Safer than stocks
- * Diversify asset classes in a portfolio
- * Speculation (high-yield or "junk" bonds)
